Intersectionality
Gallery Walk
This gallery walk highlights people of many different races, ethnicities, sexual orientations, gender identities, disabilities, ages, and religions. While there is no way to capture all intersectional identities, we hope this gallery walk serves as a launching point for further exploration and discussion.
Gallery Walk - Table of Contents

Slides 4 - 10: Youth and Young Adults - Intersectional Disability Voices

Slides 11 - 23: Present Day Intersectional Disability Voices

Slides 24 - 30: Figures in Black Disability History

Slides 31 - 37: Quotes

Slides 38 - 44: Intersectional Facts
Youth and Young Adults: Intersectional Disability Voices
“Kid President” aka Robby Novak

Pronouns: He/him

Disability: Osteogenesis imperfecta (brittle bone disease)

What they do: Kid President is a public speaker, poet, author, and actor. He is famous on YouTube for giving talks and speeches on ways we can be better people to ourselves and those around us. Kid President has interviewed President Obama, met Beyoncé, and launched his own TV show. His book, Kid President’s Guide to Being Awesome, is a bestseller.

[Image description: Black boy wearing a black suit, white dress shirt, and red tie standing in front of a Presidential seal.]

Twitter / Instagram: @iamkidpresident

Soul Pancake, 2018
Annie Segarra

Pronouns: She/her, They/them

Disability: Ehlers–Danlos syndrome

What they do: Annie is an American YouTuber, artist, and activist for LGBT and disability rights. Annie is queer, Latinx, and disabled. Annie developed her disability later in life and wasn’t diagnosed until she was 26 years old. She has created the viral hashtags #TheFutureIsAccessible and #AmbulatoryWheelchairUsersExist.

Twitter / Instagram: @annieelainey

[Image description: Latinx woman with blue hair wearing a black gloves and a black tank top that says, “NEW YORK CITY.” She sits in a wheelchair in front of a colorful brick wall.]
Aaron Philip

Pronouns: She/her, They/them

Disability: Cerebral Palsy

What they do: Aaron Philip (pronounced A-ron) is a transgender model and author. She immigrated to the Bronx from Antigua at age 3. She has modeled in campaigns for Outdoor Voices, Dove, and Sephora. Aaron was interviewed by model Naomi Campbell for the cover of Paper Magazine. She wrote an autobiography called This Kid Can Fly!

Twitter: @aaronphilipxo

Instagram: @aaron___philip them. , 2018

Chella Man

Pronouns: He/him

Disability/identity: Deaf

What they do: Chella Man is a trans artist, actor, model, and activist. He is set to make history as the first trans masculine actor cast in a DC superhero series with his role as Jericho in the upcoming Titans. Having grown up in Central Pennsylvania, Man left for New York at 17, also becoming the first trans masculine and Deaf person to sign with IMG Models. Since then, he’s also written for Conde Nast’s pioneering queer publication them, as well as given a TEDX talk about what it’s like to transition.

Twitter: @chellamanart

Instagram: @chellaman

Dazed Digital, 2020
Keah Brown

Pronouns: She/her

Disability: Cerebral palsy

What they do: Keah Brown is an author and journalist. She is the creator of the hashtag #DisabledAndCute. Brown's first book, The Pretty One: On Life, Pop Culture, Disability, and Other Reasons to Fall in Love, with Me, is a collection of personal essays/stories in which she relates to popular culture, beauty and body image, romantic love, and physical pain as a black woman with both cerebral palsy (a physical disability) and invisible disabilities. Brown also writes about her relationship with her non-disabled identical twin.

Twitter / Instagram: @Keah_Maria

Refinery29, 2019
Andrea Lausell

Pronouns: She/her

Disability: Spina Bifida

What they do: Andrea Lausell is a bisexual disabled Latina (Boricua & Cuban) based in Los Angeles, California. She creates digital content about disability, sex ed, fashion and most importantly bringing awareness to her own disability, Spina Bifida. Along with her work in the digital space, she is a talented actor, writer, editor, and producer.

Twitter / Instagram: @AndreaLausell

[Image description: Latinx woman with glasses and a headband wearing a jean jacket, necklace, and striped shirt. She is standing in front of a purple background.]
Present Day Intersectional Disability Voices
Lydia X. Z. Brown

Pronouns: They/them
Disability: Autism

What they do: Lydia is a nonbinary disability justice advocate, organizer, and writer. Lydia recently completed a term as Chairperson of the Massachusetts Developmental Disabilities Council (2015-2017) as the youngest appointee nationally to chair any state developmental disabilities council. Lydia is the lead editor behind All the Weight of Our Dreams, the first-ever anthology of writings and artwork by autistic people of color, published by the Autism Women’s Network in June 2017. Lydia has been honored by the White House, Washington Peace Center, National Council on Independent Living, and many other places. Lydia is now a Public Interest Law Scholar at Northeastern University School of Law.

Twitter / Instagram: @autistichoya

[Image description: An Asian, non-binary person smiling wearing glasses, and a plaid shirt under a black blazer.]
Vilissa Thompson

Pronouns: She/her

Disability: Osteogenesis imperfecta (brittle bone disease)

What they did: Vilissa is a disability rights consultant, writer, and advocate. She is a Licensed Master Social Worker (LMSW), and founder/CEO of Ramp Your Voice!, an organization focused on promoting self-advocacy and strengthening empowerment among people with disabilities. She also created the #DisabilityTooWhite hashtag addressing the lack of diversity within the disability community and how a lack of representation impacts disabled people of color and their ability to feel fully included and accepted within the community.

Twitter: @vilissathompson

Ramp Your Voice, 2018
Meredith Talusan

Pronouns: She/her, They/them

Disability: Albinism

What they did: Meredith is a trans journalist, author, and photographer from the Philippines. She has written for the Guardian, the New York Times, the Atlantic, the Nation, WIRED, SELF, and Condé Nast Traveler, among many other publications. She has received awards from GLAAD, the Society of Professional Journalists, and the National Lesbian and Gay Journalists Association. She is also the founding executive editor of them., Condé Nast’s LGBTQ+ digital platform, where she is currently contributing editor.

Twitter / Instagram: @1demerith

New York Times, 2020
Alice Wong

Pronouns: She/her

Disability: Spinal muscular atrophy

What they do: Alice is a disability activist, media maker, and consultant. She is the Founder and Director of the Disability Visibility Project® (DVP), an online community dedicated to recording, amplifying, and sharing disability stories and culture created in 2014. Alice is also a co-partner in two projects: DisabledWriters.com, a resource to help editors connect with disabled writers and journalists, and #CripTheVote, a nonpartisan online movement encouraging the political participation of disabled people.

Twitter: @sfdirewolf

Instagram: @disability_visibility
Jen Deerinwater

Pronouns: She/her

Disability: Multiple disabilities

What they do: Jen Deerinwater is a classically trained vocalist with a love for books. Jen is Bisexual, Two Spirit, Disabled, and is mixed race Tsalagi—a citizen of the Cherokee Nation of Oklahoma. After several years spent in politics, you can now find her in radical journalism and grassroots organizing. Jen is also the founder and executive director of Crushing Colonialism, an international, Indigenous, multi-media organization.

Twitter: @JenDeerinwater

Instagram: @crushingcolonialism

Disability Visibility Project, 2019
Claudia Gordon

Pronouns: She/her

Disability/Identity: Deaf

What they do: Claudia L. Gordon is the first deaf Black woman attorney in the United States. She immigrated from Jamaica to the United States when she was 11. She remembers arriving in the U.S. and feeling as if she could finally receive an education. In Jamaica, her hearing loss had been stigmatized even more than in the States. President Obama appointed Claudia to head the U.S. Department of Labor’s Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs. Today, she works as a key adviser to Sprint on accessibility and serves on the Board of Trustees of Gallaudet University, one of the leading universities for Deaf and hard of hearing students.

Twitter: @ClaudiaLGordon

Instagram: @cascade4ever
Leroy F. Moore Jr.

Pronouns: He/him

Disability: Cerebral palsy

What they do: Leroy is a writer, poet, musician, and activist. He is a co-Founder of Sins Invalid, a disability performance art collective. He created a lecture series called, "On the Outskirts: Race & Disability". He is also producer and columnist of Illin-N-Chillin at Poor Magazine. Leroy is the creator of Krip-Hop Nation, a movement that uses hip-hop music as a means of expression for people with disabilities. The goal of Krip-Hop is to educate the music, media industries and general public about the talents, history, rights and marketability of Hip-Hop artists and other musicians with disabilities.

Twitter: @kriphopnation

Instagram: @blackkrip

Sins Invalid, 2018
Mia Mingus

Pronouns: She/her/hers

Disability: Physical disability

What they do: Mia is a writer and organizer working for disability justice to end child sexual abuse. She describes herself as a queer physically disabled Korean woman transracial and transnational adoptee who is dedicated to communities and movements working for social justice. She travels nationally, giving talks and trainings, and is a member of the Bay Area Transformative Justice Collaborative (BATJC), a local collective working to build and support community responses to end child sexual abuse.

Twitter: @miamingus

Instagram: @mia.mingus
Leah Lakshmi Piepzna-Samarasinha

Pronouns: She/her, They/them

Disability: Neurodivergent and has chronic illness

What they do: Piepzna-Samarasinha is a queer disabled nonbinary femme writer and cultural worker of Burger/Tamil Sri Lankan and Irish/Roma ascent. Her work has been widely published and received many awards. She is currently a lead artist with the disability justice performance collective Sins Invalid, she teaches, performs and lectures across North America. Piepzna-Samarasinha co-founded and co-directed Mangos With Chili, North America's longest running queer and trans people of color performance art tour. Her new book of essays, Care Work: Dreaming Disability Justice is forthcoming in fall 2018 from Arsenal Pulp Press. Raised in Worcester, MA, she divides her time between T'karonto and South Seattle.

Twitter: @thellpsx

Instagram: @leahlakshmiwrites

[Image description: A woman of color with tan skin, tattoos, and green hair smiles and looks away from the camera. She wears a black tank top with a shark on it and stands in front of a green bush.]
Dominick Evans

Pronouns: He/him

Disability: Spinal muscular atrophy, OCD

What they do: Dominick is a filmmaker and activist. He completed his first film, trip in 2014. He is currently working on his next film, Inamorata. He is a trans and disability advocate and spokesperson, he is committed to helping the world understand and accept trans identified individuals.

Twitter / Instagram: @dominickevans

[Image description: White trans man wearing glasses and a blue argyle sweater sits in a wheelchair. He is seated in front of a grassy area with a sidewalk.]
Katherine Perez

Pronouns: She/her

Disability: Mental disability

What they do: Perez is an attorney, scholar, and activist. She analyzes disability laws and policies through critical legal and historical frameworks. She founded Coalición Nacional para Latinxs con Discapacidades (CNLD) or National Coalition for Latinxs with Disabilities. Perez was a Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute Fellow in Washington D.C. (2006-2007) and a Peace Corps volunteer in Peru (2008-2010). She currently serves on the Rooted in Rights National Advisory Board, as a REV UP Advisory Committee Member, and a Student Representative on the National Advisory Board of the National Center for College Students with Disabilities. She identifies as a Latina with mental disabilities.

Twitter: @DisRtsBlog

National Coalition for Latinxs with Disabilities
Shain M. Neumeier

Pronouns: They/them

Disability: Autism, depression, post-traumatic stress disorder, cleft lip and palate, ectodermal dysplasia

What they do: Shain is an attorney, activist and community organizer, as well as an out and proud member of the disability & LGBTQ+ communities. They are passionate on the issue of ending abuse and neglect of youth with disabilities in schools and treatment facilities stems from their own experiences with involuntary medical treatment and bullying. They work in Western Massachusetts in their own law practice focusing on disability, youth and transgender rights.

Twitter: @disjusticelaw and @smneumeier
Figures in Black Disability History
Harriet Tubman

Pronouns: She/her

Timeline: 1822-1913

Disability: Epilepsy

What they did: Tubman is an abolitionist known for her work on the Underground Railroad, where she helped runaway slaves to flee to safer areas of the country. Tubman had epilepsy as a result of a head injury from being severely beaten by her master at age 12. Even though she needed to stop and take rest breaks throughout her journeys, Tubman ventured into the depths of slave country many times, saving countless lives.
“Blind Tom” Wiggins

Pronouns: He/him

Timeline: 1849-1908

Disability: Blindness

What they did: Born blind, Tom Wiggins, as a baby, and his family were sold into slavery. Wiggins had access to a piano, and showed a lot of talent for playing the piano and composing music. Many historians also believe that he was autistic. Later in his life he performed concerts throughout North and South America, as well as Europe. Wiggins’ music has inspired many famous people, including Elton John, who composed a song in his honor.
Fanny Lou Hamer

Pronouns: She/her

Timeline: 1917-1977

Disability: Kidney disease

What they did: Hamer was civil rights activist who was important in efforts to help African Americans register to vote. She had lifelong kidney damage after being beaten. Hamer’s disability was the inspiration for her famous words, “I’m sick and tired of being sick and tired.”
Martha P. Johnson

Pronouns: She/her

Timeline: 1945-1992

Disability: Mental illness and physical disabilities

What they did: Johnson was one of the first people to resist the police during the Stonewall Riots. She became key part of New York City transgender organizing. Johnson also had both psychiatric disabilities and physical disabilities. Because she was a disabled Black transgender woman, Johnson was regularly arrested and subjected to medical treatments without her consent. Together with Puerto Rican transgender woman Sylvia Rivera, Johnson started Street Transvestite Action Revolutionaries (STAR), one of the first formal transgender organizations in New York City. STAR was a group by and for transgender young people who lived on the street, many of whom were women of color and disabled. Disability justice was at the center of STAR’s political analysis. They demanded that transgender people who were subjected to non-consensual psychiatric treatment be released from hospitals, calling them prisoners.

Image description: Black and white photograph of a Black trans woman holding a cigarette and a sign that says “Power To The People.” She is wearing a fur coat and a black and white purse.

Rooted in Rights, 2018
Audre Lorde

Pronouns: She/her

Timeline: 1934-1992

Disability: Cancer

What they did: A self-described “black, lesbian, mother, warrior, poet,” Audre Lorde dedicated both her life and her creative talent to confronting and addressing injustices of racism, sexism, classism, and homophobia. Lorde was born in New York City to West Indian immigrant parents. Her account of her struggle to overcome breast cancer and mastectomy, The Cancer Journals (1980), is regarded as a major work of illness narrative. Recounting this personal transformation led Lorde to address the silence surrounding cancer, illness, and the lived experience of women. She wrote, “Prosthesis offers the empty comfort of ‘Nobody will know the difference.’ But it is that very difference which I wish to affirm, because I have lived it, and survived it, and wish to share that strength with other women.”
Maya Angelou

Pronouns: She/her
Timeline: 1928-2014
Disability: Selective mutism

What they did: Angelou was a poet, activist, singer, civil rights activist, and author. One of her most famous works is her memoir I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings. Angelou had a traumatic childhood, and was sexually assaulted and raped by her mother’s boyfriend at the age of eight. As a result of this trauma, she became mute for five years. This condition is called selective mutism.
Quotes
“Black Disability History means a lot to me as a disabled person. I was born with cystic hygroma. I’m blind in my left eye and I’m deaf in my left ear. Each February when Black History Month comes around we only seem to celebrate the same... people... It’s always this same narrative every February where we celebrate the achievements of those who are able bodied... I believe that if I had seen myself represented during Black History Month as a child I would have felt much better about myself. I’ve always felt like I was alone and that there weren’t as many disabled people in the world. Now that I’m older I know that simply isn’t true but I wish I knew then what I know now.”

-- Sophia Chester, author

Ramp Your Voice 2018
“Black disabled people deserve to be seen and they deserve to be included as part of our rich history. Not including us is to deny our very existence and deny our worth and our accomplishments. And also, it implies that Black people cannot also be disabled which is patently false. Celebrating all kinds of Blackness and Black excellence MUST include Black disabled people.”

-- Loryn Wilson Carter, digital strategist and writer
“Black Disability History matters because the stories of black disabled people are often cast aside as a result of history not being fully explained. We aren’t taught that Harriet Tubman, Fred Hampton and many figures in black history are disabled.”

-- Neal Carter, political consultant

Ramp Your Voice 2018
“I’m a disabled person whose activism is primarily online. Living in a world that is physically and socially inaccessible (e.g., micro-aggressions, lack of transportation, lack of accessible buildings and venues) and living with a body that has significant energy and assistance needs, makes it difficult for me to ‘show up’ the way most activists imagine what ‘showing up’ means.”

-- Alice Wong, activist and consultant

Huffington Post, 2017
“Parents of children who are autistic should not assume their child is broken or needs to be fixed. Nor should they rush to sign up their child for every possible therapy or intervention. Autism is a disability, and disability is part of human diversity.”

-- Lydia X. Z. Brown, writer and organizer

Savannah Morning News, 2018
“Disability and ableism are not secondary issues, though they continually get treated as such. If you are a disabled person out there, I want you to know that our experiences as disabled people matter. Our experiences as disabled queer people of color matter—even if queer, people of color, and queer people of color communities don’t bother to include us in their events, social gatherings, strategies, movements, analysis and communities. We matter and our stories and experiences matter. It means something to be disabled. Never forget that.”

-- Mia Mingus, activist

Leaving Evidence, 2017
Intersectional Statistics
According to the US Census, 24% of Native Americans and Alaska Natives have a disability, compared to 19% of the general population. Many Native Americans and Alaska Natives with disabilities are discriminated against in multiple ways. Some barriers include inadequate funding for programs and supports, shortages of people to help individuals and programs, lack of coordination between agencies, lack of consultation with tribes, and problems identifying persons eligible for services.

National Congress of American Indians, 2013
People with disabilities live in poverty at MORE THAN TWICE the rate of people without disabilities.
Students with disabilities often graduate from high school at rates nearly 20 percentage points lower than students without disabilities.
Only 32 percent of working-age (16 and over) people with disabilities are employed compared with 73 percent of those without disabilities.
The unemployment rate for people without disabilities is 3.5 percent and the unemployment rate for people with disabilities is 8.5 percent.

Office of Disability Employment Policy,
July 2018 Disability Employment Statistics: ages 16 years and over
Even after obtaining a postsecondary education, people with disabilities earn 38 PERCENT LESS than their peers without disabilities.
References

References

- “Mia Mingus.” National Archives and Records Administration, National Archives and Records Administration, obamawhitehouse.archives.gov/champions/aapi-women/mia-mingus.
References